POTS Transformation

Carriers Are Sunsetting Plain Old Telephone Services (POTS) Across the U.S.

Major carriers including Verizon, CenturyLink, and AT&T have accelerated the rate of retiring support of copper lines in much of the United States.

These 12 states are just the beginning.

As of January 1, 2021, Verizon, CenturyLink, and AT&T have requested permission from the Federal Communications Commision (FCC) to sunset support of copper lines in these states.

Yet, businesses rely on POTS for critical services:
